Rau resigns Fan. Council seat for business reasons

by Liz Gautier

Controversial councilman Robert Rau, Jr. read a prepared statement at the December 14 Fanwood council meeting detailing his reasons for resigning from the council as of December 29.

Rau cited the "significant amount of additional time that I must devote to my personal and business matters" as the primary reasons for his leaving the council.

He also mentioned his ownership and "possible development" of property near the center of town as a reason for not voting on business that could come before the council in 1984, and felt that it would "be in the best interests of the borough" not to be on the council at that time.

Because of a conflict of interest in the planning of the new firehouse, last December Superior Court Judge Milton A. Feller ordered Rau not to vote on any matter concerning the firehouse and to resign from any commission or chairmanship having to do with the firehouse. Rau owns property adjacent to the old firehouse.

Serving his second term on the council, Rau had one more year to go on his current term. He did express an interest in helping the residents of Fanwood at a future date.

Outgoing Mayor Theodore Trumpp will name Rau's successor at the December 29 continued meeting of the borough council.

Trumpp announced the appointment of four special policemen including Councilman

Fanwood artist thanks D.P.W. with oil painting

It is not often that men of the Department of Public Works get compliments for their efforts; more often its complaints and criticism.

New Fanwood residents Frieda and Kurt Vogl wanted to thank the Fanwood D.P.W. in a tangible way for their help.

And what do you give a Public Works Department to show your appreciation? Frieda Vogl, a talented German artist who moved to Terrill Road from Syracuse, N.Y. last March, presented Fanwood Public Works Director Ray Manfra and his crew with an original oil painting to show her appreciation for the way the crew handled this year's pick-up and the fall leaf collection.

"I've never had such service in any of the towns we've lived in," Freida Vogl said. "Their help during Clean-up Week made our moving much easier."

The men are not sure where they are going to hang their "Countryscape", as Freida calls it, but they'll find an auspicious spot.

New kid on the block

Carl Pallini, a 1980 graduate of Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School, thought the time was now to open his new business at 435 Park Avenue.

As there is no other business in Scotch Plains and Fanwood featuring video games (Atari and Colecovision) and the renting and selling of Sharp VCRs (video cassette recorders) and the VCR equipment, Carl temporarily put aside his business career at Union College where he is a sophomore to pursue an education in the real business world.

Nestled on Park Avenue between the Karate Studio and The Hair Gallery, Palmer Video, as Carl has named his new enterprise, is easily accessible from the convenient paired parking spaces in the front of the store

The care & feeding of corporate jets

PART II - PIE IN THE SKY

Company jets line up for Maintenance Checks at Executive Air Fleet's Teterboro facility.

by Liz Gautier
As we mentioned last week, the owning of a corporate jet is not just a status symbol any more. It is an others in the management hierarchy. The well being of the chief executive officer, executive officer, and
